// WHAT A MICHELIN-TRAINED CHEF SEES IN KOREAN COOKING

Korean fermentation is a living process, not a recipe. Kimchi is not made — it is started. The lacto-fermentation that transforms salted napa cabbage, gochugaru, garlic and ginger into kimchi takes days, weeks, months depending on temperature and desired flavour profile. The kimchi in this guide is made in-house because the commercial alternative is a different product. In-house kimchi at 3 weeks fermentation has a complexity that no factory product replicates. Gochujang — fermented chili paste aged for months — is the backbone of Korean flavour. Making it from scratch is a commitment. It is also a competitive moat. Your gochujang is yours. Nobody else's kitchen tastes like yours.

// WHAT THIS GUIDE DOES

Korean food in America is having its defining decade. The operators who will own this market long-term are not the ones following the trend — they are the ones making it properly, with fermented kimchi, house gochujang and jjigae that takes three hours. The food cost on kimchi jjigae is 13.8%. The differentiation it creates is incalculable.

This guide is for operators who want to do it right.

Pajeon — Korean Scallion Pancake

Pajeon — Korean Scallion Pancake

COOK TIME: 8 min | FOOD COST: 16%

Ingredient	Quantity	Notes
Scallions (trimmed)	6–8 stalks	Cut to pan length
Pajeon batter (flour, egg, ice water)	180ml	Keep batter cold
Soy dipping sauce	60ml	Soy, rice vinegar, sesame oil, chili
Sesame oil	1 tsp	Finish only
Vegetable oil	2 tbsp	High-smoke point

16% 8 minHigh

FOOD COSTCOOK TIMEVOLUME

- 1

Heat cast-iron skillet over high heat. Add vegetable oil — it should shimmer immediately.

HIGH HEAT
- 2

Lay scallions flat in pan. Pour cold batter over scallions to just cover. Do not stir.
- 3

Cook 3–4 min until edges crisp and golden. Flip in one motion. Press lightly. Cook 2–3 min more.
- 4

Slide onto board, cut into pieces, finish with sesame oil. Serve immediately with dipping sauce.

Batter must be ice-cold — the thermal shock from cold batter hitting hot oil creates the crispy texture. Warm batter makes soft pancake. Non-negotiable.

Tteokbokki — Spicy Rice Cakes

Tteokbokki — Spicy Rice Cakes

COOK TIME: 10 min | FOOD COST: 18%

Ingredient	Quantity	Notes
Garae-tteok (cylinder rice cakes)	250g	Soaked 10 min if refrigerated
Gochujang	3 tbsp	House-made preferred
Fish cakes (eomuk)	80g	Sliced diagonal
Dashi broth	400ml	Anchovy + kelp base
Spring onion	2 stalks	Garnish

18% 10 minHigh

- 1

Bring dashi broth to a boil in wide pan. Add gochujang and stir to dissolve fully.

- 2 Add rice cakes. Simmer on medium-high, stirring frequently to prevent sticking.

MEDIUM-HIGH
- 3 Add fish cakes after 4 min. Continue to reduce sauce until thick and glossy — 3–4 min more.
- 4 Plate into bowl. Sauce should coat and cling. Garnish with sliced spring onion. Serve hot.

The sauce must reduce to a glaze-like consistency. Thin tteokbokki sauce is the most common failure point — keep reducing. The rice cakes will absorb flavour as they sit.

Japchae — Glass Noodle Stir-Fry

Japchae — Glass Noodle Stir-Fry

COOK TIME: 12 min | FOOD COST: 17%

Ingredient	Quantity	Notes
Dangmyeon (sweet potato glass noodles)	150g dry	Soaked 30 min, parboiled
Spinach, julienned carrot, shiitake	200g total	Stir-fry separately
Soy sauce	3 tbsp	Low-sodium preferred
Sesame oil	2 tsp	Finish
Toasted sesame seeds	1 tsp	Garnish

17% 12 min

FOOD COST COOK TIME

- 1 Soak and parboil noodles until just pliable (not fully cooked). Drain, toss with 1 tsp sesame oil to prevent clumping.
- 2 Stir-fry vegetables separately in order of density: carrot → shiitake → spinach. Season each lightly with soy.
- 3 Combine noodles and vegetables in hot wok. Add remaining soy sauce. Toss constantly over high heat for 2–3 min.

HIGH HEAT
- 4 Off heat, finish with sesame oil. Plate with sesame seed garnish. Serve warm or at room temperature.

Dangmyeon over-cooks instantly. Remove from boiling water when still slightly firm — residual heat from the wok finishes them. Overcooked japchae is mushy and unsellable.

Kimchi Pancake — Kimchijeon

Kimchi Pancake — Kimchijeon

COOK TIME: 8 min | FOOD COST: 14%

Ingredient	Quantity	Notes
Fermented kimchi (chopped)	150g	Well-fermented (3+ weeks) preferred
All-purpose flour	100g	Or rice flour for GF option
Kimchi brine	3 tbsp	From jar — adds flavour
Cold water	80ml	Ice-cold
Vegetable oil	3 tbsp	Enough to shallow-fry

14% 8 minBest Margin

FOOD COSTCOOK TIMEENTRÉE

- 1 Mix flour, cold water, and kimchi brine into a loose batter. Fold in chopped kimchi. Do not overmix.
- 2 Heat oil in skillet until shimmering. Pour batter as one large pancake. MEDIUM-HIGH
- 3 Cook until edges brown and set, about 3–4 min. Flip confidently. Press with spatula. Cook 3 min more.
- 4 Cut into wedges. Serve with soy-vinegar dipping sauce. Kimchi juices should sizzle at the edges.

Use kimchi that is fully fermented and sour — fresh kimchi won't give you the deep savoury-acid flavour. If your kimchi isn't 3 weeks old minimum, you're making a different dish.

Bibimbap

Bibimbap

COOK TIME: 10 min | FOOD COST: 20%

Ingredient	Quantity	Notes
Steamed short-grain rice	200g	From rice cooker batch
Namul (seasoned veg assortment)	150g	Spinach, bean sprouts, carrot, zucchini

- 1 Heat doosot (stone bowl) or cast-iron bowl until very hot. Add sesame oil and press rice into base. HIGH HEAT
- 2 Arrange namul around the edges in distinct colour groups. Place egg in centre.
- 3 Allow rice to form crust on bottom (nurungji) — 2–3 min. You'll hear it sizzle and smell nutty rice.
- 4 Serve in hot bowl with gochujang on side. Instruct guest to mix everything together at the table.

The nurungji (crispy rice crust) at the bottom is the prize. Serve in the hot bowl — never transfer to a cold plate. The sizzle is part of the experience.

Dakgalbi — Spicy Stir-Fried Chicken

Dakgalbi — Spicy Stir-Fried Chicken

COOK TIME: 12 min | FOOD COST: 19%

Ingredient	Quantity	Notes
Chicken thigh (diced 3cm)	200g	Thigh preferred — juicier
Gochujang marinade	4 tbsp	Gochujang, soy, garlic, ginger, sesame oil
Sweet potato (cubed)	80g	Par-cook before service
Cabbage (rough chop)	100g	Adds bulk, absorbs sauce
Rice cake (tteok)	60g	Optional — adds chew

19% 12 min

FOOD COST COOK TIME

- 1 Marinate chicken in gochujang mix minimum 2 hours. Overnight preferred for penetration.
- 2 Heat flat griddle or cast-iron to high. Add chicken — spread flat. Do not stir for 2 min to get sear. HIGH HEAT
- 3 Add par-cooked sweet potato and cabbage. Stir-fry together until chicken is cooked through and sauce caramelises.
- 4 Finish with tteok if using. Serve on sizzling plate. Optionally top with melted cheese for the Chuncheon-style presentation.

The caramelisation of gochujang sugars on the griddle creates the flavour — do not rush with constant stirring. Let it char slightly at the edges. That bitterness is intentional.

★ Doenjang Jjigae — Fermented Soybean Stew SIGNATURE

COOK TIME: 15 min | FOOD COST: 13.8%

Ingredient	Quantity	Notes
Doenjang (fermented soybean paste)	3 tbsp	Aged minimum 6 months
Anchovy-kelp dashi	400ml	Made fresh daily
Firm tofu (cubed)	150g	Press before use
Zucchini, mushroom, onion	150g total	Rough cut
Garlic (minced)	2 cloves	Added with paste

13.8%15 minSignature

FOOD COST COOK TIME STATUS

- 1 Bring dashi to boil in stone pot (ttukbaegi). Dissolve doenjang and garlic into broth. The smell should be intensely savoury.
- 2 Add zucchini and mushrooms. Simmer 5 min. MEDIUM SIMMER
- 3 Add tofu cubes gently. Do not stir aggressively — tofu breaks. Simmer 4–5 min until tofu is heated through.
- 4 Serve in boiling stone pot directly to table. Still bubbling on arrival is the standard. Top with sliced chili if requested.

Doenjang quality is everything here. The fermented paste is the dish. Cheap paste makes weak jjigae. Aged, high-quality doenjang is the single most important ingredient on this menu.

Galbi — Korean BBQ Short Ribs

COOK TIME: 12 min | FOOD COST: 24%

Ingredient	Quantity	Notes
Flanken-cut beef short ribs	250g	Cross-cut, marinated overnight
Galbi marinade (soy, pear, sugar, sesame)	80ml	Korean pear tenderises meat
Garlic, ginger	2 cloves / 1 tsp	Grated into marinade

Sesame oil	1 tsp	Finish only
Pickled daikon (banchan)	30g	Served alongside

24% 12 minTuesday BBQ

FOOD COST COOK TIME FEATURE NIGHT

- 1 Marinate ribs overnight minimum. Korean pear enzymes need time to tenderise the collagen. 24h is standard. MARINATE 24H
- 2 Grill on high-heat charcoal or gas grill. Ribs are thin — 2–3 min per side maximum. Watch for flare-ups from sugar caramelisation.
- 3 Char at edges is desired. The marinade sugars should caramelise — not burn. Pull when lacquered and glistening.
- 4 Rest 1 min. Serve with steamed rice, lettuce wraps (ssam), and pickled banchan. Finish with sesame oil brush.

Korean pear (or Asian pear) in the marinade is non-negotiable for tenderness. Apple juice is not a substitute. The enzymes are different. Use real pear.

Kimchi Fried Rice — Kimchi Bokkeumbap

Kimchi Fried Rice — Kimchi Bokkeumbap

COOK TIME: 8 min | FOOD COST: 15%

Ingredient	Quantity	Notes
Day-old cooked rice	220g	Must be cold — hot rice clumps
Fermented kimchi (chopped)	100g	Sour, well-fermented
Spam or bacon (diced)	60g	Classic version uses Spam
Soy sauce + gochujang	1 tbsp each	Season to taste
Fried egg	1	Sunny-side up topping

15% 8 min

FOOD COSTCOOK TIME

- 1 Fry meat in hot wok until crispy edges. Add kimchi — let it fry in the fat until fragrant and slightly darkened. HIGH HEAT
- 2 Add cold rice. Break up clumps immediately. Toss and stir-fry constantly for 3 min.
- 3 Add soy sauce and gochujang. Toss until rice is evenly coated and slightly crispy at edges.
- 4 Plate in bowl with slight dome shape. Top with fried egg (yolk unbroken). Serve with nori sheet on side.

The kimchi must actually fry in the fat — not steam. Wok temperature must be high enough that the kimchi sizzles aggressively when it hits the pan. Insufficient heat = steamed kimchi rice.

Sundubu Jjigae — Soft Tofu Stew

Sundubu Jjigae — Soft Tofu Stew

COOK TIME: 12 min | FOOD COST: 14%

Ingredient	Quantity	Notes
Silken tofu (sundubu)	300g tube	Do not press — use as-is
Gochugaru (Korean chili flakes)	1–2 tbsp	Adjust per customer preference
Anchovy dashi	350ml	Strong base
Clams or shrimp (optional)	80g	Seafood version — upsell
Egg	1	Cracked in raw — finishes in stew

14% 12 min

FOOD COST COOK TIME

- 1 Fry gochugaru in sesame oil in stone pot until fragrant — 30 seconds. The oil should turn deep red. MEDIUM HEAT
- 2 Add dashi. Bring to rolling boil. Add seafood if using — cook through before tofu.
- 3 Spoon large chunks of silken tofu directly into boiling broth. Do not stir. Simmer 3 min.
- 4 Crack egg into centre. Serve immediately still boiling. Egg finishes cooking at the table. Serve with rice on side.

The raw egg cracked in at the end is a service moment — the customer watches it cook in the bubbling stew. Never pre-cook the egg. The drama is part of the dish.

Ramyeon — Korean Ramen

Ramyeon — Korean Ramen

COOK TIME: 10 min | FOOD COST: 16%

Ingredient	Quantity	Notes
Instant ramyeon noodles	1 block	Shin Ramyun or similar — the ingredient is the brand

House broth (anchovy + gochujang)	500ml	Replace or augment packet broth
Egg	1	Soft-boiled or raw cracked in
Spring onion, kimchi, nori	As needed	Garnish toppings
Processed cheese slice	1	Optional — melted on top

16% 10 min

FOOD COSTCOOK TIME

- 1 Bring house broth to boil. Season with gochujang if needed. The instant packet seasoning adds MSG — use judiciously.
- 2 Add noodle block. Cook exactly per package instruction — typically 3–4 min. Do not over-cook. ROLLING BOIL
- 3 Transfer to deep bowl. Add soft-boiled egg halved, spring onion, kimchi, nori sheet.
- 4 Optional: lay cheese slice on top, torch briefly to melt. Serve immediately before noodles absorb all broth.

Ramyeon noodles continue cooking in the bowl. Time from stove to table matters. If the table is more than 2 minutes away, pull noodles slightly under-done.

Ingredient	Quantity	Notes
White sandwich bread	2 slices	Milk bread preferred
Eggs (beaten with cabbage, carrot)	2	Vegetable omelette style
Butter	1 tbsp	For both bread and egg
Ketchup + yellow mustard	Drizzle each	The authentic topping — do not skip
Sugar	Pinch	Sprinkled on egg — Korean street style

12% 5 minBest Margin

FOOD COSTCOOK TIME

MAINS

- 1 Butter and toast bread on griddle until golden. Set aside. MEDIUM HEAT
- 2 Beat eggs with shredded cabbage and carrot. Pour into buttered pan in a rectangle shape matching bread size.
- 3 Flip egg patty. Sprinkle pinch of sugar on cooked side. Place on buttered toast.
- 4 Drizzle ketchup and mustard in zigzag pattern. Wrap in paper for street-food presentation, or serve open-faced.

The sugar on the egg is not optional — it's what makes this Korean. Sweet-savoury is the point. Guests will ask about it. Tell them it's authentic Seoul street cart technique.

★ Kimchi Jjigae — Kimchi Stew

★ Kimchi Jjigae — Kimchi Stew SIGNATURE

COOK TIME: 15 min | FOOD COST: 13%

Ingredient	Quantity	Notes
Well-fermented kimchi	200g	Must be sour (4+ weeks) — key flavour
Pork belly (sliced)	100g	Renders fat into broth
Firm tofu	100g	Added last
Gochugaru + gochujang	1 tbsp each	Double chili = depth
Dashi broth	300ml	Less liquid than doenjang — more concentrated

13% 15 minSignature

FOOD COST COOK TIME STATUS

- 1 Fry pork belly in dry pot until fat renders and edges crisp. Do not drain the fat — it becomes the base. MEDIUM-HIGH
- 2 Add kimchi directly to pork fat. Fry together for 3–4 min until kimchi caramelises slightly and smells deeply fermented.
- 3 Add gochugaru, gochujang, dashi. Bring to vigorous boil. Reduce to hard simmer — 8–10 min.
- 4 Add tofu. Simmer 3 min more. Serve in stone pot, still bubbling, with steamed rice on side.

Kimchi jjigae with fresh kimchi is a different — inferior — dish. The acid from fermentation is the flavour backbone. Source the oldest, most sour kimchi you have for this pot.

Japchae Bap — Glass Noodles on Rice

Japchae Bap — Glass Noodles on Rice

COOK TIME: 10 min | FOOD COST: 17%

Ingredient	Quantity	Notes
Japchae (prepared, see entrée)	150g	Made to order from prep

Steamed rice	180g	Short-grain
Fried egg	1	Runny yolk — tops the bowl
Sesame seeds + scallion	As needed	Garnish

17% 10 min

FOOD COST COOK TIME

- 1 Plate steamed rice in bowl as base layer. Leave slight indent in centre.
- 2 Re-heat japchae in hot wok — 2 min with splash of soy to re-season. HIGH HEAT
- 3 Spoon hot japchae over rice. The noodles should cascade over the rice naturally.
- 4 Top with fried egg. Garnish with sesame seeds and scallion. Serve with kimchi banchan on side.

This dish lives or dies on the japchae quality. Use the same prep standards as the entrée version — dangmyeon cook-time precision and high wok heat for re-heating.

Budae Jjigae — Army Stew

Budae Jjigae — Army Stew

COOK TIME: 15 min | FOOD COST: 20%

Ingredient	Quantity	Notes
Spam (sliced)	80g	The defining ingredient — non-negotiable
Korean instant ramen noodles	1 block	Added last — absorbs broth
Kimchi, baked beans, hot dog	80g each	The army base pantry origins
Gochujang broth	500ml	Spicy anchovy-gochujang base
Processed cheese slice	1	Melted on top — signature finish

20% 15 min

FOOD COST COOK TIME

- 1 Arrange all ingredients in wide pot before adding broth — this is a visual dish. The presentation before cooking matters. TABLETOP OPTIONAL
- 2 Pour gochujang broth over all ingredients. Bring to boil on high. All ingredients visible above broth line.
- 3 Add ramen noodle block when broth is boiling. Cook 3 min — noodles absorb spiced broth.
- 4 Lay cheese slice on top at table. It melts naturally into broth. Serve communal-style with rice bowls.

Budae jjigae is comfort food with a history — American military surplus foods fused with Korean flavour post-Korean War. Tell the story. It makes the Spam intentional, not accidental.

Korean Fried Chicken — Yangnyeom

COOK TIME: 14 min | FOOD COST: 22%

Ingredient	Quantity	Notes
Chicken wings or thigh pieces	300g	Double-fried technique
Rice flour + corn starch batter	150g dry	No wheat — lighter, crispier
Yangnyeom sauce (gochujang, soy, honey, garlic)	80ml	Sticky, sweet-spicy
Oil for frying	As needed	165°C first fry / 185°C second
Sesame seeds, scallion	As needed	Garnish after saucing

22% 14 min

FOOD COST COOK TIME

- 1

First fry at 165°C for 8 min — cooking through without browning. Remove and rest 3 min. Do not skip rest.
- 2

Second fry at 185°C for 4–5 min until deep golden and shattering crisp. The double-fry drives out moisture.
- 3

Drain immediately. Toss in warm yangnyeom sauce while still hot. Sauce adheres to the crispy shell.
- 4

Plate over shredded cabbage slaw. Garnish with sesame and scallion. Serve with radish pickle on side.

The double-fry is the technique — no shortcuts. First fry cooks, second fry crisps. Single-fry KFC is soft KFC. The crispy shell is the product.
